MEADOW BROOK RESERVOIR Contractor Dodd Finishes for the Season and All Water Received Can Be

The work of building the new dam at Meadow brook reservoir has been completed by Contractor Dodd and the water which has been allowed to run to waste while the contractor was engaged there is now being sent into Fairview reservoir. The job has required all the summer and fall to complete and there is now a fine dam which will holdsell the water that is received to be stored there. The corewall, riprappings, spillway and screenhouse are all done save for the wooden top of the screenhouse and the flashboards on the spillway, which will be ready soon.

the spillway, which will be ready soon.

There are now two 24-inch pipes running through the screenbouse, one going to Fairview and the other being a waste pipe, in addition to the spillway, so that there will never be any danger of there being too great a boo of water there as to flow beyond the right of the city. A first class job has been done and the job has been done within the appropriation, which also allowed for the securing of some rights All of the old dam has been remove except the spillway, which will remain this winter, and any further work which may be desired there can be undertaken when the department wishes. The past summer and fall have been excellent for the work, as there have been no long wet spells to inter-fere with the work.

The rainfall on Wednesday, includ-ing that of Tuesday, amounted to .44 of an inch, and the last measurement showed Fairview reservoir to be 166 inches below high water mark.
